Curious Ways of Hopi Maids. In this age of advanced views on matrimonial entanglements and obligatious it is refreshing to read of the cu-rious marriage customs of the gentle savages of the Hopi tribe in Arizona. Here the Hopi maid does the woolng, for the women of the Hopi brand are held in much higher respect than are the coppery sisters of kindred tribes. And when the Hopi maid has selected the youth of her choice she goes to his house as a suitor for his hand and testifies both to her devotion and her industry by grinding corn beneath his roof until he is sufficiently impressed with her qualities to yield and name the

When the Hopi maid leads the man of her choice to the tribal altar, she does so in the midst of elaborate ceremonials of long duration, and when all is over she takes him to her home. Nor does she yield this ownership when she weds. On the contrary, the house, the fields and all the property save the herds belong to the wife. This, as will be seen, greatly facilitates the Hopi method of obtaining a divorce, for when the wife tires of her husband she simply takes his saddle from her floor and tosses it out through her door, and the divorce is completed. -Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A wedding took place a short time back in a large town in the north of England, the service being conducted by a rather eccentric vicar. Two days after the ceremony he called at the house of the bridegroom's mother, but she happened to be out, so he said he would call again, which he did later on in the day, carrying two large green bags under his arm.

This time he found her in. So he began by asking them to clear the table a little. Then he opened the green bags, from which he took the registers. These he opened and in a most solemn

The family breathed once more.

The overcheck bears about the same relation to the horse as the county jail does to human society. In case of the trotting horse it seems that some de-vice must be used in order to compet a horse to carry its head out almost in a line with its neck, so that the curv-ature of the latter at the throttle will not cramp the windpipe or shut off the horse's wind. In case of the run-ning horse it naturally extends the head and neck without artificial aid. This is because the gallop is the horse's natural gate, while the trot is artificial when it comes to extreme speed. Hence the overcheck is needed. In the utility horses the checkrein is never needed.-Field and Farm.

The Greenland shark is well known as a foe to whalers. It will follow a dead whale to the ship and show no fear of the men while they are engaged in cutting up the prey, biting out lumps from it as big as a man's head. Some-times it happens that a man will fall off the slippery side of the whale close by the shark, but the latter never attacks him, being intent upon gorging led, if eaten raw, and when cooked itself with the flesh of the cetacean. The most severe wounds from thrusts of the whalers' knives will not persuade it to desist. This species of shark is often partly or wholly blinded by a parasitic worm three inches long which fastens itself at the corner of the eye and lives on its fluids.

Right Doing.

One's rightful work is often halted by fear of what others will say about This may be even more a barrier to the work than the fear of not doing the work at all. It takes courage to do what we believe we ought to do, when we think we shall be criticised or misunderstood or scorned. But the je20 wtdf R. WALTON MOORE, Trustee. Fairfax, C. H., Va. real calamity lies in not doing what we ought. Of this it is well to have so strong a fear that we shall have courage to face whatever others may say of our right doing.

When Coins Were First Made. Certain passages in the "Iliad" of Ho-mer would lead to the inference that coins of brass were struck as early as 1184 B. C. Tradition affirms that the Chinese had bronze coins as early as 1120 B. C. But Herodotus, "the father of history," ascribes the "invention" of coins to the Lydians, about nine centuries B. C., and there is no satisfactory evidence that coins were known prior to that date.

with wax you must power hand against the cork, and you must hold it there until the wax is quite dry. Then it will be easy for you to draw out the cork by using the stick of wax, which adheres to it in the same manner as you would use a screw. No matter how firmly fixed the cork may be, it will almost immediately yield to the pressure. You must, however, take care not to wrench the stick of wax away from it while you are drawing it out, and you must also see that the cork is perfectly dry before you pour any wax on it.

Bengal Tigers.

The man eater is usually an older tiger, whose strength is failing and whose teeth have partly lost their sharpness. Such a benst finds it easier to lurk in the vicinity of settlements and to pick up an occasional man, woman or child than to run down wild cattle.

The largest, fiercest and most brightly colored tigers are found in the province of Bengal, near the mouths of the Ganges river and not far from Calcutta. A full grown Bengal tiger sometimes measures ten feet from nose to tip of tail. Such a monster makes no more account of springing upon a man that a cat does of selzing a mouse. He surpasses the lion in strength and ferocity and has no rival among beasts of prey except the grizzly bear and the recently discovered glant bear of Alaska.—St. Nicholas.
